Fundraising for PanQuake: Are We There Yet?

Talk Liberation has been sharing with supporters the amazing results of the first two weeks of their fundraising campaign, which has delivered nearly 70% of the initial US$50k start-up target way ahead of its estimated timeline. Users of social media, discontent with the existing options, have clamored to join the PanQuake community and showed their support both with their donations and the warmth of their online comments such as:

> "Bravo! I could hug you all for doing this. This project will result in a significant counter measure to the instrumentarian power Big Data has assembled. This is exquisite"

> "Thank you for pushing for a better internet!!"

> "Looks to be a very exciting project, hope to be part of a new successful venture and one which is definitely needed if free speech and freedom of thought is to be protected in this age of over-reaching big tech oligarchy"

> "I love this idea. Cannot wait to see it happen. Hope it will not be too long"

> "Have been waiting so long for this. People need this"

> "We need more doers. Thanks for creating change!"

> "Important work changing the underlying mechanics of the internet and social media"

> "It's about time social media was responsive to the users. I am happy to support visionaries who advocate for individual freedoms and act on those passions. Looking forward to having the vision realized"

The question on every road trip - are we there yet? Well, the answer depends on where 'there' is. The 50k target is what determined whether PanQuake would be able to complete the Beta version of PanQuake AT ALL - Yes We Can! Thanks to all of the wonderful supporters who have already joined the PanQuake community and have donated and shared our message.

These initial funds have ensured that Talk Liberation will be able to complete our Beta product.

But many of our supporters are expressing a deep hunger for PanQuake. They want it now. In fact, they want it yesterday. We feel the same, but are working with a 99% volunteer team, the days are long and there are not enough days in the week. The Talk Liberation team is amazing, juggling family commitments, day jobs and the huge passion they feel for this project. But we value our team and we're well aware of the risk of burn-out. So we need to start working on stretch funding goals so that we can employ our dedicated staff full-time to finish and deliver PanQuake ASAP. This will make sure the platform is finished sooner, and our community gets to access and use it sooner. So, a win-win for all!

How are we going to get there? With the support of a strong community who will help out not only by donating, but by spreading the word, sharing the links, making sure that all of their networks know that PanQuake is coming, that it's different, that it respects users and their privacy, that it will be advertising-free and that it will be available to all. There is a huge demand for change - change can come about if we work together. A lot of people donating a little is how we will make this work; how together, we can be the change. Talk Liberation encourages everyone who is waiting for that change to make it happen, to donate to accelerate the process and to spread the word!
