The Countdown Begins: Panquake 'Look and Feel' To Be Revealed To The Public

PANQUAKE - a new crowdfunded social media platform focused on user privacy and freedom of speech - has announced it will be publicly revealing its interface design for the first time.

A 72 hour countdown to the big reveal is about to begin, the climax of which will be an online event featuring high profile PANQUAKE endorsers such as CIA whistleblower John Kiriakou and ex-NSA Technical Director Bill Binney. Further details are available at https://panquake.com/reveal

To date, over 2 million people have visited the PANQUAKE.com website and nearly 3,500 donors have contributed funds towards the development of the next generation social media technology.

Panquake Founder and Chief Product Officer Suzie Dawson said "We are thrilled to be revealing the sleek and professional design of our groundbreaking new social media service, PANQUAKE, to our community. The support we have received from thousands of people has been instrumental in the creation of this amazing technology created in the public interest and for the public good."

Panquake Chief Security Officer, Yale Privacy Lab Founder Sean O'Brien said "The Panquake interface is so professional and so beautiful. It competes well with any other design out there. We started the actual development process in June and here we are, already showing you this cool sneak peek at the front end. The quality of not just the product but also the development team is something really special, it's been a pleasure to work so closely with this team and to produce something amazing."

BACKGROUND ON PANQUAKE:

Little more than a year since PANQUAKE first discussed a groundbreaking idea of a crowd-funded social media application where the users are the customers – not the product – PANQUAKE's build has achieved a series of major milestones, from network design proof of concept to a functioning prototype interface.

Members of the public have flocked to apply to become PANQUAKE BETA users and PANQUAKE is in its third and final funding phase in order to launch the BETA offering.
